Recent Hospitalities Here and Elsewhere.

PERSONAL NOTES

It is only occasionally now one day is distinguished from another by formal invitations. There is plenty going on within doors and in the open, but not of a nature to require any deep-laid plans in advance. The present week was given up to participation in the ceremonies at Baltimore in Cardinal Martinelli's honor, and the various functions arranged before and since for him at home, and discussions of a more or less exciting character as the stock market went up and down. A new sensation should occur now to follow these topics, and in the natural sequence of events probably will. Interest in things matrimonial is revived by the reception of and expectation of other wedding cards for both May and June dates, the dislike for this month having passed with many other notions of weddings may be safely anticipated, certainly in the way of gifts. One does not wait now-a-days for the cards when the day is fixed, as presents make most interesting exhibits of the regard of one's ac-quaintances. Miss Martha Hichborn, as might have been expected by one who has might have been expected by one who has so many friends, has already a very large collection of beautiful articles. Mrs. Blaine has given her future daughter a superb silver service, which will help adorn the home of the couple in New York next winter

Count Colacicchi, the papal guard, contemplates as extended a tour of sightseeing in this country as will be possible for the length of his stay. He sails for home early in July, and will go west as far as Chicago as well as take a glimpse of summer life at Newport and Bar Harbor during the interval. Those who have met him socially have become great admirers of the titled young soldier and lawyer, who is both handsome, well educated and well bred. His knowledge of English naturally has contributed very greatly to his enjoyment of the many social courtesies of which he has been the recipient the present week and which began last Sunday night by the dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. James F. Barbour. Next week Count Colacicchi is expected to spend a few days with Rev. Angelo Caruso of the Italian church, an associate in collegiate days in Rome. Mr. Margerie, the newly appointed first

Prince and Princess Khevenhuller, who in Mexico representing the Emperor of Austria at the consecration of the memorial chapel at Queretaro, erected to mark the spot where Emperor Maximilian was shot in 1867, have sailed for Europe. The honors thus paid the ill-fated monarch are considered as the prelude to the resump-tion of diplomatic relations between Austria and Mexico, as the republic not only gave the site of the chapel, but was officially represented at the ceremony. Prince Kheven-huller, who is hereditary grand master of the court of Austria, a Knight of the Golden of the dual empire, was the most intimate friend and companion of Maximilian, and It was on this account that Emperor Francis Joseph selected him to represent the Austrian imperial family at the consecration ceremonies at Queretaro. The closing of this international incident is specially welcome at this capital, where embarrassing situations are apt to continually occur be tween representatives of countries which have not cordial relations. It brings about most annoying complication for those who

At Santa Barbara President McKinley made the principal address of the day. After expressing his gratitude for the re-ception accorded him, and commenting on the cosmopolitan character of the assembly, the President said:

"My Fellow Citizens: What a splendid civilization comes out of the old states and from the old nationalities that are represented here today, the best civilization in the world; a civilization based upon liberty,

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 10, 1901. The Lakewood season is ending with good numbers and fair prospects for profitable business to the very end of May. Dividing the honor of responsibility for these favorable conditions, a late spring season from the weather point of view and stirring polo contests in tournament series which have attracted the wealthy and fashionable patrons of polo from near and far are to be credited. These games will close tomorrow with a final contest for the Georgian court cups between the Bryn Mawrs and Lakewood Freebooters, and it is thought that the first named team has the chief advantage of chance in that match. The liberality of Mr. Gould and his disregard of expense where polo is concerned, have given the public an attraction which is ular pastime, and riding and driving par-ties find their chief attraction in the well-shaded drives, which radiate in all directions from the village. The growth in spring foliage on trees and shrubs is almost to be noted from day to day, and for another month the place will be among the most beautiful of resort habitations.

day accommodations in good numbers. The Laurel House, which invariably remains open until June 1, has also a house count which substantially exceeds that of the corresponding date one year ago, and to a greater or less degree this increase is general throughout the smaller houses and cottages of the place.
